

Want to understand more about this planet we call home? Interested in what makes the Earth tick? Wonder what challenges we face in the future? The University of Exeter's Department of Geography has the answers for you.

In celebration of the United Nation's International Year of Planet Earth 2008, the University of Exeter's Department of Geography is hosting a series of public lectures on the past, present and future Earth. Everyone is welcome.

Thur 1 May Tremough Campus (Lecture Theatre A) Richard Jones
Farming, Floods and Dragons - Human impact in Shangri-La over the last 10,000 years

Thurs 29 May Streatham Campus (Moot Room) Chris Fogwill
Antarctica, an isolated continent? Some lessons from the past

Thurs 26 June Tremough Campus (Lecture Theatre A) Larissa Naylor
Rock coasts on the move: effects of the March 2008 storms

31 July Streatham (Moot Room) Tim Quine
Use and abuse of land resources

28 August Tremough Campus (Lecture Theatre A) Bridget Woodman
Energy Policy for a Changing Climate

25 September Streatham (Moot Room) Stewart Barr
'Doing Your Bit'. Can we change our lifestyles to help the Planet?

30 October Tremough Campus (Lecture Theatre A) Jasper Knight
Climate Change and Sandy Coastlines

27 November Streatham (Moot Room) Chris Turney
Ice, Mud and Blood: Lessons from Climates Past

11 December Tremough Campus (Lecture Theatre A) Chris Caseldine
Iceland - living on the margin

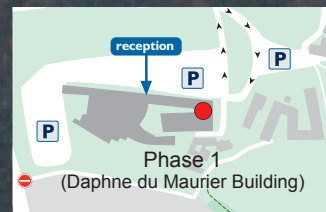

All lectures start at 6.30 pm

● Moot Room

Streatham campus

● Lecture Theatre A

Tremough campus